

Dear Mr. Mustaf,

May 9, 2008

In appreciation to the contribution of "Take Charge Juvenile Diversion Program" has had on the young men at Thurgood Marshall Middle School, has been life changing. The program has had a positive affect on the male students in the following areas: academic achievement, conduct behavior, and self confidence. However, sense this program is still relativity new to the Prince George's County Public School; there are always areas to improve upon. Therefore, the "Take Charge Program", I can envision will have a greater impact into the family social disconnect and community gap that each male student is challenge with everyday, will continuc to help improve the young men social growth and development in those parts of their lives.

Therefore, the Take Charge Mentorship Program at Thurgood Marshall Middle School is progressing in the right direction. I would certainly recommend this program to be implemented in other middle schools in order to assist male adolescences through this very critical time in their lives.

Sincerely,
